CHRISTOPHER REYNOLDS

And His Descendants

The name Reynolds, also spelled in America as Runnels, Runals, etc., is of Norman origin, and comes from the family of Renard. The family is of great antiquity, claiming descent from Reynolds - son of Grethferth - The Dane - King of Northumberland. Grethferth and his two sons were driven from England circa 944 and took shelter in Normandy. His descendant Fitzreynolds - meaning son of - returned to England with WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR.

More than 30 years has been spent by the author on compiling this genealogical record. Research was made in U. S. Census Returns, Family Bibles, other published work, etc. The thanks of the author is extended to the many individual members of the family that assisted in rounding up data for the book. Indexing is by paragraph rather than by page.

FAMILY COAT OF ARMS

Out of the Middle Ages and down through the centuries to the world of today, has come the proud custom and the romantic tradition of the ancestral coat of arms. Devised in remote days of chivalry and strange adventure, borne by armed Knights in tournaments and on ancient battlefields, cherished by illustrious forebears of ages past, and handed down from generation to generation as a sacred emblem of family honor, the coat of arms is an object of pride and distinction for its bearers today and an heirloom and a heritage which generations of descendants will treasure. It is an eloquent symbol of distinguished ancestry and patrician blood.

Since armorial bearings are hereditary, American descendants of British and Continental families have the unquestionable right to use the arms borne by their ancestors. The coat of arms of one's ancestors, moreover, are as essential a part of one's genealogical record as the name of the ancestor who bore them. With the growing respect for pedigree and the increasing interest in genealogy among cultured Americans, the kindred subject of heraldry, the science of coat of arms, is at the present time experiencing a notable revival of general attention.

The origin of heraldry may be traced back to the dawn of history. Primitive peoples - such as the prehistoric tribes of Europe and the Indians of America - have their totems; the ancient Hebrews, Egyptians, Chinese and Japanese used symbols comparable with the insignia of hereldry; the Aztecs of Mexico carried shields and banners bearing personal or tribal devices; and the heroes of ancient Greece and Rome inscribed hereditary ensigns on their shields. Centuries later, the Norman invaders of England bore shields emblazoned with crudely devised insignia. But all of these early devices lacked the essential characteristics of true armorial bearings and may not be regarded as heraldry.

True heraldry, in the sense of a systematized science of hereditary armorial bearings, dates from the early 12th Century. There is no record of the use of such bearings during the First Crusade and they were extremely rare during the Second Crusade of 1147. But by 1189 a number of the shields borne in the Third Crusade were emblazoned; and the Great Seal of Richard the Lion Hearted in the same year, shows his shield charged with lion rampant.

Three factors contributed to the origin of heraldry; First, man's natural desire to enhance his personal appearance, which found expression in the ornamentation of his military equipment: Secondly, the need, among warriors who covered their bodies and heads with armor, for identifying marks easily recognizable in the press of battle; and, Thirdly, the need, in an age when few could read and write any personal seals were used rather than signatures, for seals of clearly identifiable design.

Heraldry was the answer to the needs of the times, and with remarkable swiftness it came into general use. From the beginning of the 13th Century, noblemen and gentry adopted the custom and proudly displayed their arms in architectural ornaments, furniture, jewelry, as well as on their paraphernalia of war.

From the practice of embroidering the family device on the surcoat, worn over the coat of mail, comes the expression of Coat of Arms.
